

Wellbeing: Mindfulness 1

This 12-week Mindfulness and Meditation course offers a gentle and supportive introduction to mindful living and meditation practices. Each week we will explore practical ways to bring more calm, balance, and awareness into everyday life through guided meditations, breath awareness, relaxation techniques, and simple mindfulness practices.

Over the course, you will experience a variety of meditation styles, gradually building confidence in creating a practice that feels supportive and sustainable for you. Sessions will also include opportunities for reflection, discussion, and learning about the connection between the mind, body, and nervous system.

Who Could Benefit from This Course?

This course may benefit anyone wishing to slow down and reconnect with themselves amidst the busyness of modern life. It may be particularly supportive for those experiencing stress, overwhelm, anxiety, difficulty switching off, poor sleep, or mental fatigue.

Some studies also suggest potential physical benefits linked to stress reduction, including:

- Reduced muscle tension
- Lower blood pressure in some individuals
- Improved recovery from stress and fatigue
- Support for chronic pain management when used alongside appropriate care

No previous experience is needed. The course is suitable for beginners as well as those wishing to deepen an existing mindfulness or meditation practice.

Is There Anything Else I Need to Know?

Some sessions may include short written reflections or course-related forms. The course combines practical experience with gentle theory and discussion to support understanding and integration of the practices.

IMPORTANT: If you have any concerns about participating due to your physical or mental health, Seek GP guidance.

Will There be Additional Costs?

Please bring:

- A yoga mat (optional)
- Warm clothing or a blanket for relaxation
- A cushion (optional, for comfort)
